

Common Arrangements for Gas (CAG)

Project Information Session

Thursday 16th June 2011

The Commission for Energy Regulation and the Utility Regulator (the Regulatory Authorities or RAs) are holding an open information session on Thursday 16th June 2011 10.15am in The Gresham Hotel, Dublin.

The aim of this information session will be to give an update on the status of the Common Arrangements for Gas (CAG) Project and to give an overview of a number of CAG related information & consultation papers that will be published in advance. Since our last update published on the 8th April 2011¹, which outlined the High Level Work Plan for CAG, the RAs have made good progress regarding the detailed re-planning of the CAG Project implementation. Details of the revised CAG Project are outlined in the Detailed CAG Project Work Plan, which is published alongside this information session notice.

In order to assist interested parties in understanding the structure of the CAG Project going forward and requirements it will place on the gas industry the first half of the Information Session will present an overview of the CAG Project, including contents of the detailed Work Plan and the High Level Principles of the CAG code, and will give interested parties the opportunity to ask questions. The second half of the information session will then give an overview of the content of two CAG Tariffs work stream related consultation papers which will be published in advance and will give interested parties the opportunity to ask questions.
